Students in EPISD will ‘Read Across the District’ on Friday

EL PASO, TEXAS — Students throughout the El Paso Independent School District will stop everything they’re doing on Friday to pick up a book and participate in the annual Read Across the District event.

Read Across the District celebrates EPISD’s commitment to literacy and the development of a love of reading among its students. The goal of the event is to create an opportunity to every school in the District to read a book for 30 minutes at the same time.

The Read Across the District celebration will start at 9:30 a.m. on Friday, Nov. 17, at Zavala Elementary School, 51 N. Hammett St.

School officials, local dignitaries and other civic leaders will be on hand to help schools read. Students will be able to speak to media about the event and their efforts to increase literacy at their homes.
